

John has been with the Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) since 1991. In 1993, John began his early career with the Criminal Investigation Division where he was responsible for conducting audits of individuals and corporations who derived income from criminal activities. Between 1995 and 2022, John held the positions of investigator, team leader, case manager, as well as technical advisor, during which time, John conducted and managed several criminal investigations and was the lead on large teams for complex cases.

John is a key contributor to local, regional, and national training programs and initiatives, and has an extensive and long history at the CRA in delivering training.

Since August 2022, John has been with the Training and Learning Section, at the Criminal Investigations Directorate, as a Senior Technical Specialist, where he co-facilitates several training courses as part of the national training program at the CRA.