

Taking the lead for inclusion: Accelerating through diversity

Raffles City Convention Center, Singapore, 18-20 September 2019

Asia's young, increasingly educated workforce and its growing middle class are a wellspring of dynamism. Millennials and women in Asia are poised to comprise a new generation of leaders, and engage in entrepreneurship at exponential rate. Nineteen of twenty of the world's most dynamic cities are in Asia, making the region attractive to investment, capital, and talent.

Yet across Asia, gaps remain in women's political empowerment, educational attainment and other measures of gender parity. At current rates of change, the gender gap in East Asia and the Pacific will take 171 years to be closed. Women's full participation and leadership in its economies and societies is needed to sustain Asia's attractiveness, grow its influence globally, and build a brighter future for its people from the ground up. Global challenges like climate change, technological disruption and political upheaval will not be fully addressed without diverse ideas, vision and commitments, including those of women.

Women's leadership is critical to unlock the power of Asia's rich diversity - of culture, age, gender, class, and religion, among others - to ensure that solutions to those challenges are inclusive and lasting. Diverse viewpoints and experiences must be included and put towards a common good, whether the creation of inclusive communities, built environments and public spaces; making organisations future-ready; or fairly sharing the rewards of trade, growth and technological change.

Drawing from insights and conclusions of Women's Forum Meetings across the year, as well as the G7 summit in August and other global conversations, the very first Women's Forum Asia meeting will take place from 18-20 September 2019 in Singapore. Under the theme Taking the lead for inclusion: Accelerating through diversity, it will gather 1,500 leaders from across the region and the world to connect on how women's leadership can accelerate revolutionary and inclusive changes in our communities, organisations and economies for better future for all.

Women's Forum Asia 2019 will take you on the journey to accelerate positive changes through diversity. On the first day, we focus on Breaking barriers to inclusion. This pathway focuses on ways and means to drive inclusion and women's empowerment, such as education and culture, and create lasting change both within organisations and across wider society.

The second day's focus Embracing inclusive growth examines ways to accelerate growth that is sustainable by making inclusion a core guiding principle of cities, systems and communities - for example, by tapping women's leadership to help address climate change, and designing cities and public spaces that harness new technology but are also safe for all. Such inclusive growth helps sustain the region's attractiveness in the long run.

[Opening plenary] [Padang Room]

Leading Asia's future: Attract and retain capital, talent & investors

Developing Asia is facing a serious infrastructure shortfall, requiring \$1.7 trillion per year. Also more than 60% of employers are experiencing difficulty attracting critical-skill employees and retaining high-potential employees. How can gender inclusion and women's leadership help Asia address the challenges of attracting and retaining talent as well as drawing private capital for infrastructure investment? In addition, how can these challenges be resolved to further promote diversity and inclusion? In what ways can governments and companies collaborate to turn the promise of Asia into reality, while ensuring fairer and more inclusive opportunities for all?

Firestarter: Chiara Corazza, Managing Director, Women's Forum for the Economy & Society & Jean-Pascal Tricoire, Chairman & CEO, Schneider Electric

Moderator: Smita Pillai, Chief Diversity & Inclusion Officer, Dow Jones

Speakers:

- Datuk Shireen Muhiudeen, Chairwoman, Bursa Malaysia
- Chih Ching Ong, Executive Chairwoman and Executive Director, KOP Limited

14:40 – 15:05 [Padang Room]

All in the family: Nurturing creativity, innovation and entrepreneurship for good

Family businesses are a critical pillar of many Asian economies, and have different needs at different stages of growth: some are seeking non-family professionals to lead their businesses, while others are tapping their next generation to form new ventures and harness technology to scale. How can Asia's family firms nurture the entrepreneurship of their millennial generations a- particularly women - for longevity? In a world with increasing connectivity between businesses; and greater mobility and collaboration, how does entrepreneurship help firms adapt to change, compete, and survive? How can government help to support entrepreneurs, and in turn how can entrepreneurship foster inclusion and women's leadership?

Moderator: Heang Chhor, Managing Partner, Qualgro

Speakers:

- Ren Yung Ho, Vice President Brand HQ, Banyan Tree Holdings Limited
- Annie Koh, Vice President Business Development & Academic Director of Business Families Institute and International Trading Institute, Singapore Management University

15:05 – 15:25 [Padang Room]

A conversation with Violet Oon, Culinary Curator & Chef & Su-Lyn Tay, Director, Violet Oon Inc

15:25-15:35 Networking break

15:35-16:15 [Padang Room]

Up with inclusion: How businesses can take a stand for inclusive growth

Women & supply chain DC session

By examining markets through a lens of inclusion, businesses can uncover new opportunities:

for instance, the base-of-pyramid market worldwide comprises 4 billion people and is worth an estimated $5 trillion. Throughout Asia, what supply chain investments and business models are helping to create income opportunities and deliver affordable, relevant products and services to low-income and marginalized communities? How might businesses take a stand for inclusive growth beyond their own organisational practices in ways that also benefit their bottom line? What kinds of perspectives and leadership do they need to do so?

Moderator: Georgette Tan, President, UN Women Singapore

Speakers:

- Rahimah Abdulrahim, Director of Public Policy for Southeast Asia, Facebook
- Chetna Sinha, Founder, Mann Deshi Bank
- Wendy Teleki, Head, Women Entrepreneurs Finance Initiative (We-Fi) Secretariat, World Bank Group
- Regine Wassmuth, APAC Sourcing Center Director, L'Oréal

16:15-17:00 [Padang Room]

Rebooting finance: how can fintech shape a more inclusive financial system?

Banking development in Asia, with a more focus on corporate lending, is leaving 800 million Asians without access to traditional banking. Meanwhile, innovations like mobile banking, crowdfunding and blockchain have radically transformed the way we shop, pay, even purchase insurance, making financial services more inclusive and purposeful. What is the future of traditional banks? How should governments and regulators facilitate digital finance and at the same time manage cybersecurity and other risks? And how can women's perspectives enable financial products and the regulations that govern them to reflect users' and clients' needs?

Moderator: Natalia Blokhina, Co-founder, Brighter Ventures

Speakers:

- Sarah Chen, Co-Founder & Managing Partner, The Billion Dollar Fund for Women
- Agnes Hugot, CEO & Co-founder, Fast Track Trade
- Rashmi Kwatra, Founder & Chief Investment Officer, Sixteenth Street Capital

17:00-17:45 [Padang Room]

The talent puzzle: Filling the gaps through inclusion

One variable that's rarely discussed about the future of work is labour mobility: how and where people move for work. Demographic changes such as falling birth rates, combined with technology and other disruptions, mean gaps in talent need to be filled. Asian women, in particular, are one of the fastest-growing mobile worker groups, and their contribution is critical to economies. What are the risks of business-as-usual mobility, recruitment and retention policies? What policies help develop homegrown but globally-minded talent and inclusive organisations for the future of work in Asia?

Moderator: Star Jones, President, Professional Diversity Network, NASDAQ

Speakers:

- Feon Ang, Vice President APAC Talent and Learning Solutions, LinkedIn
- Emmanuel Jacomy, Partner, Shearman & Sterling
- Datuk Shireen Muhiudeen, Chairwoman, Bursa Malaysia
- Alicia Yi, Vice Chairman, Board & CEO Services, Korn Ferry

17:00-18:10 [Blundell Room]

Dialogue in the Dark Workshop: Leading for An Inclusive Community (pre-registration & limited capacity)

17:45-18:30 [Padang Room]

Reinventing cities for life through urban innovation and design

Advancements in big data analytics and other technologies offer governments, planners and the private sector new opportunities to make urban life more sustainable, inclusive and efficient, from platforms involved in shared mobility, to giving people more control over their data. How can cities reduce the negative impacts of car traffic without reducing the mobility of their citizens? Can air pollution, congestion, CO2 emissions or the use of public space be limited while enhancing people's access to jobs, shops, health services or educational institutions? How open data and urban innovations, viewed through a lens of inclusion, can help to build human-centered cities? In what ways they create value for the people and support the sustainable development of the city?

Moderator: Irene Tham, Tech Editor, The Straits Times

Speakers:

- Borina Andrieu, Managing Director, Wilmotte & Associates
- Young Tae Kim, Secretary-General, International Transport Forum at OECD
- Kalle Siebring, Head of Communications, Nissan Indonesia & Head of communications strategy and planning, Nissan Asia & Oceania

8:00-8:30     Networking coffee

8:30-9:15     [Padang Room]

Connecting Asia: infrastructure and mobility for tomorrow

Asia is undergoing a much-needed infrastructure boom, building transport and communication links that facilitate integration and trade, and urbanising developing regions. As smart cities use digital technology to connect, protect, and enhance the lives of citizens, empowering cities and people will become essential. Meanwhile, the need to build access to unserved and underserved communities cannot be ignored. How can we build infrastructure while enhancing access, convenience and efficiency for all users? How to ensure that mobility technology also used to address environmental issues? What roles do industry and government play in ensuring the right enabling environment to deliver sustainable and inclusive solutions?

9:15-9:25     [Padang Room]

A conversation with Jeanne Lim, CEO, Hanson Robotics & Sophia, The Human-Like Robot

9:25-10:15 [Padang Room]

Embracing humility: When AI meets with Emotional Intelligence

Women & AI DC session

The adoption of machines and algorithms in the workplace will create 133 million new jobs, compared to 75 million lost by 2022. As artificial intelligence is applied more and more widely throughout business, healthcare, cybersecurity and other domains, these applications will also need to be paired with high emotional intelligence (EQ) and empathy. What skills will we need to imbue AI with EQ? What are the implications for women who are shown to have a distinct EI advantage? What is the role of business, government and civic organisations in rebuilding citizens' trust in AI?

10:15-11:00 [Padang Room]

Beyond the tipping point: Gender balance cannot wait!

In collaboration with INSEAD

Gender diversity is not only the right thing to do but it also makes smart business sense, from improving organisational performance, boosting employee retention, driving transparency, fairness to encouraging innovation and more. Yet, why is it still difficult? How does gender bias manifest within an organization? And how can individuals and organizations be effective in tipping the scales?

Moderator: Neha Thakkar, Associate Director Gender Initiative and Social Impact Initiative, INSEAD Hoffmann Global Institute for Business and Society

Speakers:

- Helen Duce, Leader, Lean In Singapore
- Sarah McKensy, Head of Diversity & Inclusion, Asia Pacific, Johnson & Johnson

11:10-11:55 [Padang Room]

Climate consciousness: Make climate action count

Women & climate DC session

Humanity has only 18 months left to save our planet. The environmental impact will directly affect business, society, and ecosystems; and governments are seeking to mitigate its effects with far-reaching regulations. Meanwhile, the private sector, accounting for 60% of global GDP, are taking the lead in dealing with climate change. Yet, to be effective in this leadership role, businesses need a radical shift in their consciousness. So how do companies shift from treating climate change solely as a corporate social responsibility issue to an important business problem? What are the opportunities for consumers and governments to demand more sustainable environmental, labor and other practices from the private sector? And what can be done to catalyze such action?

Moderator: Stefanie Beitien, Director of Partnerships, Eco Business

Speakers:

- Cherine Fok, Director, Sustainability Services, KPMG Singapore

Dialogue in the Dark Workshop: Leading for An Inclusive Community (pre-registration & limited capacity)

11:55-12:40 [Padang Room]

What if the future of work is the key?

Technological advances, demographic shifts, and consumer pulls are fundamentally changing the way we work and the way companies design jobs and environments. What are implications for policy makers, for companies and for individuals? How will businesses operate under the new realities of work? What are the impacts of the future of work? How can we take this opportunity to reimagine talent models, organizational practices, and business models for a more inclusive organizations and better future for both women and men?

Moderator: Lihui Zhang, Executive President, Caixin Media

Speakers:

- Connie Heng, Partner, Head of Capital Markets Asia Pacific, Clifford Chance

16:05-16:50 [Padang Room]

Building an inclusive future: Be the change-makers

Women & STEM DC Session

Globally, women are underrepresented in STEM at all levels. According to the OECD, only 29 percent of those in science research and development are women, with a low of 19 percent in South and West Asia and a high of 48.8 percent in some countries like Malaysia. This disparity of inclusion will further perpetuate gender-biased technology in different parts of the world. How can we create a new narrative on the crucial participation of women in STEM, which can address gaps in technology design and usability? How should different stakeholders work together to encourage women and girls pursue careers in STEM?

Moderator: Cheryl Liew-Chng, CEO, The 24 Hour Woman
